Conducted by Eleanor Schorer

The Seasons.

Which season of the year do you like best? Which would you choose from all the rest? First comes the wonderful spring, When flowers bud and birds sing; And then comes summer with flowers and sunlight. When folks all think of things so bright; And then comes autumn when sum-

MY dear Cousins: Do you hear the clock? It sings, "tick-tock, tick-tock," as minute by minute vacation's last days fly away. And we are at once so full of regret and happiness both, that we feel quite mixed up and at loss whether to laugh or cry. So we do neither. But we play a bit harder and work a bit harder in order to have all the fun we can before the school bell rings.

THE FAIRIES.

I read about the fairies, And dream about them, too. And sometimes, I am sure, I'll see one, really, true. It may be on a daisy, Or resting on a rose, Or hidden in my mother's smile, Now which do you suppose? By HELEN GOLD, aged eleven, Brooklyn, N. Y.

THE ENCHANTED TROUT.

ONE upon a time in a gloomy forest there lived an old witch who was very powerful. One day while she was in the forest picking berries she met a little girl who had a pitcherful of water. "Oh," said the witch, "will you give me a drink of water? I am very thirsty." The child was a rude little girl, and she did not know that the woman was a witch, anyway. So she said, "I will not. Go and get your own water." The witch was very angry and changed the girl into a fish.

One day the King's son was riding by, and his horse was very thirsty. Just then he spied the river. When the horse stopped to drink, the Prince heard a voice calling out, "Save me, oh, save me!" He looked about, but could see no one, until all of a sudden he saw a trout's head sticking out of the water. "Over yonder lives a witch. Kill her and then come back to me," the fish disappeared. The Prince rode in the direction in which the trout had pointed, and saw the witch. She said, "What are you doing here, and what do you want?" The Prince said, "I am here to kill you." So saying, he drew his sword and killed her. Then he returned to the river. But instead of seeing a trout he saw a beautiful maiden. They mounted the horse and rode to the palace, where they were married and lived happily ever after.

THE OCEAN. The waves dash wildly on the white sand, Breaking roughly, rolling swiftly on their way. The lightning flashes, the thunder cracks; 'Tis always so on a stormy day. The sun dances on the clear water, And it ripples and plays on the sand. Father Neptune is happy this day. He holds the rule of the sea on his hand. So, one day, we have a wild sea. The roar of the water, the flashes of light, The next, a smooth, peaceful ocean.

Lying serenely, calm and bright. By HENRIETTA FAY, aged fourteen, New York City.

AIDED BY MRS. WILSON.

President's Wife Assured Here

DANVILLE, Va., Sept. 8.—Jerome Isaacs, aged nineteen, and who fought in many notable engagements of the war, will not go to trial without friends on Friday. Yesterday he produced a letter signed by the President's wife showing her interest in his dilemma. The young man is charged with posing as a Secret Service agent and obtaining from Margaret Russell, a young woman, money and jewelry. United States Commissioner Fynn says the letter signed by Mrs. Wilson pledged Isaacs a "square deal" in the courts.

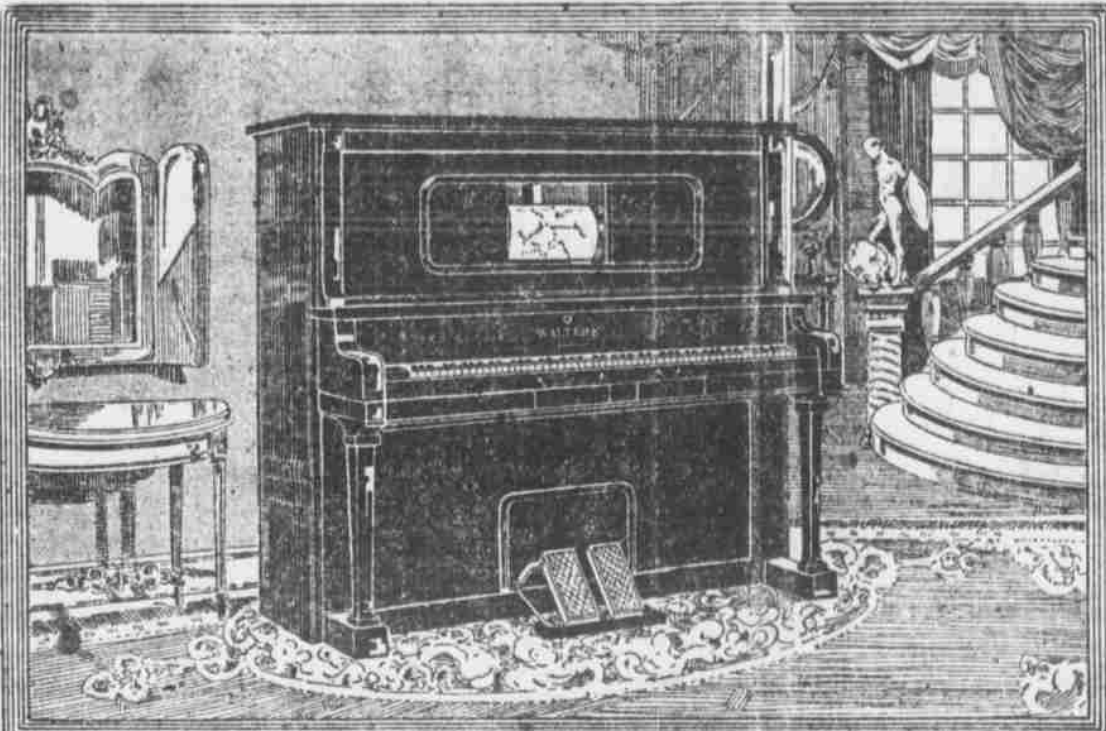

Isaacs's mother, it is said, made a direct appeal to Mrs. Wilson when she heard that her son was in trouble here, and the fact that he had been shot and passed abroad and had formed part of the personal bodyguard of the President while he was in France served in good stead. The letter proved a passport on here, for when he was about to go to jail for lack of bond local citizens put up a bond, retained counsel to defend him and provided money for the transportation of witnesses here from Baltimore.

BURNED BY HIS HOME BREW. Morris Zuckerman, eighty, of No. 1646 St. Mark's Avenue, Brooklyn, was treated yesterday in the Brownsville Police Station for burns he received Tuesday night at his home when a kettle, in which the police assert he was making whiskey, exploded. He was locked up on a charge of violating the Volstead act.
